

2

Let $f(x)$ represent an unknown distribution of mass for an object along x . You are given its Fourier transform $F(s)$.

Is it possible to determine the object's center of mass from $F(s)$ without taking the inverse Fourier transform? Explain.