Abbas El Gamal

Uncorrelation versus Independence

Let $X \in \{a, b\}$ and $Y \in \{c, d\}$ be two uncorrelated random variables.

Are they necessarily independent? Justify your answer.