Supplementary questions

In the region moderately close to the screen, for the case where we have a very large number of equally spaced slits, something special happens at a distance behind the screen. What is it, and can you describe why it is seen at this distance? (The same thing can also happen at integer multiples of this distance.)

——

a